Resource of the Month:
Podcast episode- Turning Teaching into Scholarship with Dr. Mike Fitch, MD, PhD

This month’s resource of the month offers a way to look into your own teaching and pivoting what you learn to produce scholarship. This podcast episode provides an overview of different frameworks and models of scholarship through which to approach writing about teaching in scholarship, best practices and tips when starting the research process, a list of resources, and much more. If you are unable to listen to the podcast, you may view the Show Notes for the podcast here, which breaks down the key points that was discussed in the podcast episode as well as some key takeaways.
